Instructions for those outside K.C. or too young to vote

Using an unsigned petition, you may photocopy as many of the petitions as you think you might need, and they may go front and back. Unlike the one for registered voters, these will not be legal documents, so some of the picky details aren't as necessary. There is no need to notarize these. The number of signatures will only matter as a way of being impressive about what support we have; there are no legal ramifications.

They may put comments in the street address column, and even use the next row or two if needed. If they want to volunteer, of course, we want that information; they can include phone number or email address.
